

Dear Mxolisi,

this is your mom. I am worried to death about you. Where are you? Is everything alright? What happened and why is the police looking for you?

The police just paid us a visit and we all are worried about your well-being. They literally came storming into our house and were looking for you. They treated us as badly as always and especially your little sister is still shivering when she thinks of that horrific moment.

Please my dear son, tell me what did you do that gave the police the opportunity to shook us that enormously. My heart is shaking 'cause we can't find you. Why are you hiding? I promise you, everything will be alright at the end. Trust me, we will find a way to make everything good again. Please just come back home to your loving family.

I know that you could never have done something seriously even tho we don't have the best relationship anymore. However, you're my son and you know that I love all of my children and you also know that you, Mxolisi, are special to me.

Please come home! We will find a way to go on with everything.

XO,

Mommy